Hello Tinie,

I was sitting around daydreaming the other day, and one of the fellows snapped a picture of what was in my mind. Now seeing how vividly my thoughts were brought to light, I thought I would send you a copy and let you look into the window of my heart. I don't have to tell you that I imagined each one of those girls were you, you know that I did I hope. I can truthfully say though that you were here with me in my arms last night, and it was you and nobody else. We sure had a big night it was a little hard on the bed clothes because I had to change those, but I hope you pay me a visit here real often. Don't worry about the bedclothes I get those washed at the laundry anyway. Come back and see me soon you know I like you too. Do you like these cartoons? They seem to be getting quite a few of them here lately, and I always try to get one of them for you. Still love me. if you do tell me all about I like to hear it. Not so many in one line though. One to a line is plenty. whether you mean it or not doesn't make a lot of difference tell me about it just the same. does that get a rise out of you? We sure had a good supper again tonight plenty of ham, and it was really good and rolls just as good as you can make them, and that is plenty good enough for me. Lately we have been living like kings around here. sometimes the meals aren't just so good but if they are punk one day it is usually extra good the next day. While I keep getting fatter around here every day. I want you to keep reducing and getting skinnier. Nothing unfair about me you see.
